PAMA Promotes Aviation Careers via JSfirm.com

Roanoke, Texas (February 27, 2019) - JSfirm.com announces its newest job distribution partner, the Professional Aviation Maintenance Association (PAMA). Now, when companies advertise jobs on JSfirm.com, those jobs will also reach PAMA members at www.pama.org.

"PAMA's intention is to better connect maintenance professionals with would-be employers, and to provide our corporate members with another avenue to get the word out about good job opportunities," said PAMA President John Goglia. "JSfirm.com is a natural partner for us since so many of our members already use their service."

As part of the partnership, PAMA members will receive discounted rates for job postings on JSfirm.com.

"PAMA's purpose—to promote and recognize aviation maintenance technicians—is very important to our industry," said JSfirm.com Manager of Marketing & Partnerships Abbey Hutter. "Through its network, we will enhance our ability to make aviation jobs readily accessible to current and future aviators. We believe partnerships like this one are very important in our resolve to address the imminent maintenance shortage."

Partnerships allow companies who advertise open positions on JSfirm.com to have their jobs seen by hundreds of thousands more relevant candidates than if the job were only posted on a traditional job board. We are giving aviation companies and aviation professionals a way to connect that is unique to the industry, at a time when such connections are vital to the sustainment of the industry.
